A REFLECTION

FROM DEACON ALBERT

Many times in the gospels we read statements of Jesus that come from some well-known stories, and they have, over the centuries achieved a bit of a legendary status. These sayings are the type of scripture that when they are repeated, people hearing them nod their heads in a way that indicate that yes, these words are profound, and their wisdom is beyond debate.

So it's a surprise then, that time after time in the Gospel of John people misunderstand Jesus. They understand his words in the normal human way, but Jesus wants to raise people's thinking and understanding to a new, higher way of looking at life. His words surprise people, because he is asking them to see him in a new way—a divine way—rather than a human way. Such is the case where Jesus said to Martha, "Your brother will rise."

Now Martha is no bystander who does not know anything about Jesus or his mission. She and her sister and brother are long-time friends of his, and well acquainted with him and his teachings. Yet when Jesus tells her that her brother will rise, she misunderstands him and replies with her faith in the resurrection at the end of time, "I know he will rise, in the resurrection on the last day."

No. Jesus wants to take her to a new understanding.

I am—the resurrection—and the life; whoever believes in me, even if he dies, will live, and everyone who lives and believes in me will never die. Do you believe this?

And there it is. No more misunderstanding. No more confusion. No more wondering what he could possibly be talking about. He takes the eternal name that was revealed to Moses at the burning bush, and he applies it to himself, claiming divinity. Claiming to be God.

Jesus wants Martha to know that it is through Jesus himself that Lazarus will rise again, "I am the resurrection and the life." Jesus is the resurrection. Belief in Jesus gives life. He wants Martha—and us—to know that for anyone who believes in Him, death has only the appearance of death because we still live after death.

If we believe in Jesus we will NOT cease to exist after death, ----- the life we live in Christ will continue after death; that "everyone who lives and believes in me even if they die, will live." The resurrection is not just something in the future, Jesus offers life now. He is the very source of eternal life.
